

Alignments are subject to change during the EIS process as environmental impacts are identified and as preliminary engineering is completed.

